Location: HO 311

Movie Description: Spring 1994, Kigali, Rwanda's capital city, deep in the heart of Africa. Bernard Valcourt is a man divided between hope and disillusionment. In Africa to shoot a documentary on the devastation wreaked by AIDS, Valcourt watches on as tensions rapidly escalate between Tutsis and Hutus. At the Hotel Des Mille Collines, home to expatriates, Valcourt falls madly in love with Gentille, a beautiful Rwandan waitress. Though she feels the same way, their romance grows in fits and starts; she is so young and he - he is so white.. In spite of their differences, Gentille and Valcourt throw caution to the wind and marry. And then war breaks out. Amidst the ensuing chaos the lovers are brutally separated. Valcourt searches desperately for his wife, but because of his status as a foreigner, is forced to leave the country. Months later, Rwanda is stained with the blood of close to a million Tutsis but order has been restored. Valcourt returns to Kigali in search of his wife. But with many survivors displaced from their homes and some living in refugee camps across borders, his task is a difficult one. Amidst this chaos, will Valcourt find Gentille? And if he does, will they recapture their love or will the scars of Africa's most brutal war run too deep? A beautiful love story set against the horror of genocide, a Sunday in Kigali paints, with clarity and compassion, a picture of the horror and the hope that reside in the human heart.

Movie Description: Did you know only half of the over 20 million Africans kidnapped into slavery survived the torturous trip to the New World? That slaves were promised freedom to fight for Britain in the Revolutionary War? That many Europeans came to America as bonded labor? That a country founded on freedom justified the enslavement of human beings? Africans in America: America's Journey Through Slavery is the groundbreaking four-part series that makes history by sharing it from a new perspective.

Nearly ten years in the making, this landmark six-our film series exposes the truth through surprising revelations, dramatic recreations, rare archival photography and riveting first-person accounts. Africans in America helps define the reality of slavery's past through the insightful commentary of a wide range of voices including General Colin Powel, authors John Edgar Wideman and Barry Unsworth, and leading scholars. Narrated by Academy Award nominee Angela Bassett, it offers unparalleled understanding - from slavery's birth in the early 1600s through the violent onset of civil war in 1860.

Arlit, Deuxieme Paris

Program: World Languages

Languages French, Bariba, Hausa and Location: HO 311

Movie Description: Arlit, Deuxieme Paris is a case study in migration and environmental racism set in an uranium mining town in the Sahara desert of Niger. Here European corporations extracted nuclear power and profits, leaving behind illness due to radiation, contamination and unemployment.

Arlit flourished during the oil crunch of the early 70's when its uranium mines employed 25,000 workers from around the world in high paying jobs. It had frequent international flights, electricity, and nightlife, earning it the nickname, "le deuxieme Paris" (the second Paris) Then came the collapse in uranium prices and the Tuareg rebellion against the central government in Niamey. The European companies abandoned it, leaving behind the derelict machinery littering the desert that is so memorable an image in the film. Arlit demonstrates the ultimate futility of overseas investment in a commodity-based industry as a strategy for development.

What strikes one most about Arlit, however, is that it is a place of waiting. In sometimes humorous moments, we realize that most people are there in the hope of going somewhere else. Only the nomadic Tuareg have found an occupation: smuggling desperate Africans on the dangerous journey across the desert to Algeria. From there they hope to pursue the uncertain life of undocumented immigrants in Europe.

El Silencio de Neto

Movie Description:

This politically inspired drama represents Guatemala's first commercial feature film. Set in Guatemala, 1954, at the time a U.S. funded government overthrow of left-wing president Jacob Arbenz, it chronicles the struggles of a pre-adolescent boy to grow up in a tumultuous time. Neto, at the funeral of his uncle Ernesto is suddenly visited by his uncle's ghost. Their conversation becomes a flashback of six months earlier. The memory follows the changes wrought by the intervention of U.S. military and local troops as the coup begins. Neto's family's life is profoundly affected by the military action. Neto's father, a teacher, loses his job to military personnel. His classmates and their families begin to disappear. Neto and his family must flee their city. There is also conflict between his father and uncle, His father has always put his responsibility to his family ahead of all else and his uncle has wandered the world attempting to find himself. Neto has asthma and the women in his family smother him with concern.

Le Malentendu Colonial

Program: World Languages

Languages French, German, English Location: HO G03

Movie Description: Le malentendu colonial examines European colonialism in Africa through the prism of Christian evangelism. The film scrutinizes in particular the role of German missionaries in the 1904 genocide of the Herero people. It was during this genocide that Germany developed its first concentration camps. Le malentendu colonial also examines the 1884 Berlin Conference, where the colonial powers divided Africa amongst themselves.

The film reveals how colonialism destroyed African beliefs and social systems and replaced them with European values as if such values were the only ones compatible with modernity. Although critical of the relationship between the missionaries and the colonizers, the film also highlights the role of African Christians in Namibia's struggle for independence and in greater African Renaissance.

Orfeu

Movie Description:

From the highly acclaimed Brazilian Director Carlos Diegues (Bye Bye Brazil, Xica da Silva), featuring the music of one of Brazil's most legendary musicians Caetano Veloso, comes a cinematic spectacle capturing the vibrant colors, seductive samba music and visually tantalizing ambiance of Brazil's Carnaval. Based on the play that inspired Black Orpheus, Orfeu takes place in Carioca Hill, a dangerous slum in Rio de Janeiro. Orfeu, a charismatic and beloved samba musician, leads his school each year in the Carnaval parade, refusing to abandon the slums where he was raised. When Orfeu falls in love with Euridice, an Indian girl visiting her aunt in Carioca Hill, he arouses the jealousy of his fiery mistress, forgotten lovers and childhood friend Lucinho, now a brooding drug lord. Shifting from the unvarnished brutality of drug raids and lynch mobs to the glittering spectacle of Carnaval, this romantic, dynamically beautiful film is full of life and energy.

He is desperate, pawns everything to regain his machine, goes to work, has the thing stolen from him while his back is turned, and then goes on a search throught rome to find it. That is about all there is to it. But it happens to be very close to a lyrical masterpiece.

And this is not because we see Rome as it is, or poor people, or rags. It is because these actual details are organized by a humane view of life. The filme is unafraid to examine openly, straighforwardly, the terrible distorted, destructive world which man has made for himself.

In the beautifully majestic landscape of rural Brazil, Darlene longs for love, family and passion. Determined, she abruptly uproots herself from her small town to find the one man who can fulfill her desires. Three years later and still single, Darlene returns to her hometown and accepts a modest marriage proposal from her humble neighbor Osias. Before long, Darlene finds herself in a grueling work routine while Asias oversees from the comfort of a hammock. Relief comes in the form of a permanent visit from Osias' cousin Zezinho, who can't hide his amorous feelings for Darlene. Their love for each other results in the birth of a child. Just when Osias and Zezinho are getting used to balancing their unique three-way marriage, along comes Ciro, a young and handsome drifter who ignites Darlene's untapped passion. But will he join the Menage, or sweep, or sweep her away from it all?

Based on a true story, Me You Them was featured un Certain Regard at the 2000 Cannes Film Festival and was an official selection at the 2001 Sundance Film Festival.
